CFO Services

The role of a Chief Financial Officer (CFO) is to oversee a company's financial operations and provide a financial vision for future growth. This is true for nonprofit organizations as well as for-profit businesses no matter what the size. But many businesses and nonprofits are too small to require a full-time CFO on staff, nor do they have the money or resources to hire one. In many cases this means that the responsibilities of the CFO are delegated to the CEO or owner of the company. But the job of a CFO is critical to a company's success. And, as a business owner, CEO, or executive director of a nonprofit, you might not have the right skill set to fulfill the role of CFO. Besides, do you really need to add one more thing to your to do list? Acclamar has the solution.
